Based on a Real Scientist

Dr. Temperance Brennan is inspired by real-life forensic anthropologist and author Kathy Reichs, who also served as a producer on the show. The character shares her name with the lead from Reichs' novels.

Emily Deschanel Is a Real-Life Vegan

Like her on-screen counterpart, Deschanel is a dedicated vegan and advocate for animal rights and environmental causes.

David Boreanaz Directed Multiple Episodes

David Boreanaz didn't just play Booth — he also directed 11 episodes, proving his talent behind the camera as well as in front of it.

The Squinterns Were a Creative Solution

After Zack Addy's departure in Season 3, a rotating cast of interns (nicknamed "the squinterns") brought fresh energy and variety to the lab scenes.

The Jeffersonian Is Fictional

Though it looks official, the Jeffersonian Institute is made up — it's modeled after the Smithsonian Institution, and many exteriors were filmed at real D.C. museums.

The Writers' Strike Changed Zack's Story

The 2007 writers' strike led to a major shift in Zack Addy's storyline, forcing an unexpected plot twist due to the shortened season.
