Did You Know?

-  Michonne's katana was a real (but dulled) sword used for close-up scenes.
-  Woodbury was filmed in the real town of Senoia, Georgia.
-  Andrea's comic storyline was instead adapted for Carol in the TV version.
-  The Governor's eye patch was directly inspired by the comic book character design.
-  BACK Merle returned this season after being absent since early Season 1.
-  Hershel's leg amputation was one of the most shocking moments of the season.
-  Lori died giving birth to Judith, diverging significantly from her comic fate.
-  Rick began hallucinating Lori after her death, symbolizing his grief.
-  Danai Gurira trained extensively in sword fighting before filming began.
-  Lennie James improvised many emotional lines as Morgan.
-  Merle's death was filmed secretly to avoid leaks.
-  The Governor's real name was revealed as Philip Blake.
-  Andrea died in the finale, a major change from her long-running comic role.
-  Laurie Holden didn't learn Andrea would die until late in production.
-  Milton, the Governor's scientist, was created specifically for the show.
-  Michonne and the Governor's fight scene was rehearsed for over a week.
-  Baby Judith was played by twin girls, switching out between scenes.
-  Andrea was originally meant to survive, but the script was changed during production.
