FUN FACTS

1. 🏌️ North Korean state media claimed Kim Jong Un scored 11 holes-in-one in his very first round of golf, a score so absurd it would beat Tiger Woods on his best day — a story often cited as peak propaganda.
2. 🎤 Eminem's mother didn't just dislike his lyrics — she sued him after he turned their family feud into platinum-selling albums heard worldwide.
3. 🇺🇸 Noah Webster wanted American English to look nothing like British English — he even argued spelling should be simplified by law.
4. 🖋️ Vanessa Bell and Virginia Woolf didn't just influence art and literature — their family gatherings helped kick-start modernism in Britain.
5. 💻 Satoshi Nakamoto vanished completely, abandoning a fortune of over a million Bitcoins — one of the largest unexplained disappearances of wealth in history.
6. 📺 Sir Trevor McDonald was so trusted that viewers once joked if he read a lie on the news, they'd still believe him.
7. 🕒 Alfred Hitchcock could stage the most terrifying murders on film but was genuinely unsettled by breakfast — eggs, in particular, made his skin crawl.
8. 📺 The Likely Lads became so relatable that viewers argued which character they were — the ambitious Terry or the stuck-in-his-ways Bob.
9. 😂 Cleo Rocos and Kenny Everett's sketches were so chaotic that rules were regularly broken on live TV, horrifying producers.
10. 🌙 The nickname "Moonies" became so widespread that many people never learned the group's real name.
11. 🚗 Lyndon B. Johnson used his Amphicar to prank guests by pretending the brakes had failed — then calmly floating away while they panicked for their lives.
12. 🗣️ Vic Reeves began as a parody of loud, overconfident entertainers — until the character became more famous than the man who created him.
