

1. Back in the smoky, swingin' days of 1959, which legendary London jazz club first opened its doors and became a hotspot for music icons?
2. Marlinspike Hall might sound posh, but it's actually home to which eccentric fictional adventurer — a familiar face to Tintin fans?
3. Sherlock Holmes may have cracked every case going, but who was the ever-patient landlady putting up with him at Baker Street?
4. In the chaotic world of seaside puppetry, Punch and Judy are constantly at each other's throats — but what's their relationship?
5. Smith, Peck, Murdock and Baracus — four names, one iconic crew... but what are they better known as?
6. Stanley Kubrick didn't just pick a random title — which of his films shares its name with a type of bullet with a soft core and hard outer shell?
7. Before Toto stole the show, an early stage version of The Wizard of Oz featured a very different companion trotting alongside Dorothy — but what animal (and name, if you're feeling fancy) took his place?
8. On a film set, when actors return to re-record dialogue in a studio, what do the initials ADR stand for?
9. Mitch Buchannon, CJ Parker, and Summer Quinn — beach, slow-mo running, and plenty of drama... but which rescue team are they part of?
10. Live TV took a wild turn when which puppet famously "attacked" chat show host Michael Parkinson?
11. "Heisenberg" isn't just a scientific name — it's the alter ego of which infamous TV antihero?
12. When films go big with ancient battles, gods, and legends, what three-word phrase is commonly used to describe these epic productions?

QUIZMASTER

Entertainment Pot Luck #17

Wooden Spoon Quizzes

Questions

Answers

One for the Bar!

1. Back in the smoky, swingin' days of 1959, which legendary London jazz club first opened its doors and became a hotspot for music icons?
2. Marlinspike Hall might sound posh, but it's actually home to which eccentric fictional adventurer — a familiar face to Tintin fans?
3. Sherlock Holmes may have cracked every case going, but who was the ever-patient landlady putting up with him at Baker Street?
4. In the chaotic world of seaside puppetry, Punch and Judy are constantly at each other's throats — but what's their relationship?
5. Smith, Peck, Murdock and Baracus — four names, one iconic crew... but what are they better known as?
6. Stanley Kubrick didn't just pick a random title — which of his films shares its name with a type of bullet with a soft core and hard outer shell?
7. Before Toto stole the show, an early stage version of The Wizard of Oz featured a very different companion trotting alongside Dorothy — but what animal (and name, if you're feeling fancy) took his place?
8. On a film set, when actors return to re-record dialogue in a studio, what do the initials ADR stand for?
9. Mitch Buchannon, CJ Parker, and Summer Quinn — beach, slow-mo running, and plenty of drama... but which rescue team are they part of?
10. Live TV took a wild turn when which puppet famously "attacked" chat show host Michael Parkinson?
11. "Heisenberg" isn't just a scientific name — it's the alter ego of which infamous TV antihero?
12. When films go big with ancient battles, gods, and legends, what three-word phrase is commonly used to describe these epic productions?

1. Ronnie Scott's
2. Captain Haddock
3. Mrs Hudson
4. Husband and Wife
5. The A-Team
6. Full Metal Jacket
7. A cow named Imogene
8. Automated Dialogue Replacement
9. Baywatch
10. Emu (Rod Hull)
11. Walter White (Breaking Bad)
12. Sword-and-Sandal

1. 🍷 Ronnie Scott's Jazz Club became a legendary venue, hosting icons like Miles Davis and Ella Fitzgerald.
2. 🏠 Captain Haddock inherited Marlinspike Hall — despite not exactly being the tidy, stately type!
3. 🎨 Mrs Hudson is famously tolerant... imagine putting up with Holmes' experiments and violin at all hours.
4. 💍 Punch and Judy being married explains a lot — that relationship is pure chaos!
5. 🚚 The A-Team's van is almost as famous as the team itself — black with a red stripe, of course.
6. 🎯 "Full metal jacket" bullets are designed for better penetration — not exactly light bedtime reading!
7. 🐄 In early stage adaptations of The Wizard of Oz, Dorothy's companion wasn't Toto at all — it was a cow named Imogene... which definitely would've given Kansas a much stronger farmyard vibe!
8. 🎙️ ADR is often used when on-set audio is unusable — meaning actors have to perfectly match their original performance later.
9. 🏊 Baywatch made lifeguarding look like the most dramatic job on Earth — and the slow-mo runs became iconic.
10. 📺 Emu's "attack" on Parkinson became one of the most unforgettable moments in British TV history.
11. 🌿 Walter White chose "Heisenberg" as a nod to the uncertainty principle — fitting for a man living a double life.
12. 🗡️ "Sword and sandal" films were especially popular in the 1950s and '60s — think Hercules-style epics!

