ONE FOR THE BAR

空手

1

William Zabka originally believed Cobra Kai would be a short nostalgia project before it became one of the biggest streaming hits in the world.

2

Ralph Macchio was actually older during the filming of The Karate Kid than his character Daniel LaRusso was supposed to be.

3

The famous “wax on, wax off” training method from The Karate Kid is referenced multiple times throughout Cobra Kai.

4

Several original cast members from the Karate Kid films returned to reprise their roles decades later for Cobra Kai.

5

The series first launched on YouTube Premium before later becoming a massive success on Netflix.

6

Xolo Maridueña, who plays Miguel, performed many of his own stunts during the series.

7

The All Valley Tournament scenes often involved hundreds of extras to recreate the atmosphere of a real martial arts championship.

8

Martin Kove, who plays John Kreese, is a real martial artist and has trained in karate for years.

9

The rivalry between Daniel LaRusso and Johnny Lawrence was inspired by the idea that every story has two sides.

10

Many of the dojo logos, uniforms and posters seen in the series were specially designed to resemble 1980s martial arts branding.

11

Tanner Buchanan trained extensively in martial arts and stunt choreography before filming many of Robby's major fight scenes.

12

The creators of Cobra Kai filled the series with hidden references and callbacks to all three original Karate Kid films.
