12 FACTS ABOUT RED ROSE

-  The sinister Red Rose app was designed to feel disturbingly realistic by blending horror with modern smartphone and social media culture.
-  The series was created by twins Michael and Paul Clarkson, who wanted to explore how technology can manipulate fear and friendships.
-  Although the story is set in Bolton, filming also took place across parts of Greater Manchester and Lancashire.
-  Isis Hainsworth, who plays Roch, previously appeared in the Netflix drama Metal Lords.
-  The creators deliberately avoided traditional monsters and ghosts, making the app itself the true horror of the series.
-  Red Rose first aired on BBC Three in the UK before later becoming available internationally on Netflix.
-  The friendship group in the show call themselves "The Dickheads" throughout the series.
-  The production team worked closely with graphic designers to make the Red Rose app interface look authentic and believable.
-  Many scenes were filmed in cold, wet weather to help create the bleak and unsettling atmosphere of the show.
-  Several younger cast members were relatively unknown before Red Rose and gained major recognition after the series aired.
-  The series explores real-world fears surrounding online surveillance, privacy and anonymous internet communities.
-  The soundtrack of Red Rose mixes modern electronic music with tense atmospheric sounds to heighten the feeling of paranoia throughout the series.
