ONE FOR THE BAR!

12 DID YOU KNOWS ABOUT THE MANDALORIAN TV SERIES

1

In early concept art for The Mandalorian, Grogu was originally referred to simply as “The Child” — and the production team went to extreme lengths to keep his real name secret during filming.

2

Pedro Pascal wasn't always inside the Mandalorian armour. Several stunt performers and body doubles also wore the suit for action-heavy scenes.

3

Grogu's species still has no official name in the Star Wars universe — despite characters like Yoda and Yaddle appearing for decades.

4

The Razor Crest ship became so popular with fans that when it was destroyed in Season 2, many viewers genuinely believed Disney had leaked fake footage to mislead audiences.

5

Werner Herzog reportedly told the production team they were “cowards” for considering using CGI instead of the practical Grogu puppet.

6

Most of the series was filmed using revolutionary “StageCraft” technology — giant LED walls displaying digital environments in real time instead of traditional green screens.

7

Giancarlo Esposito said he trained extensively with the Darksaber prop because it was surprisingly heavy and difficult to wield convincingly.

8

The phrase “This is the Way” became such a cultural phenomenon after the show launched that it quickly spread into memes, merchandise, and everyday conversations.

9

Taika Waititi both directed an episode and voiced the assassin droid IG-11 in the series.

10

Grogu's puppet reportedly cost around $5 million to create, making him one of the most expensive TV puppets ever built.

11

Mark Hamill secretly returned as Luke Skywalker in the Season 2 finale, with the production using de-aging technology to recreate his younger appearance.

12

The Mandalorian was the first live-action Star Wars TV series ever made — and its success helped launch multiple spin-off shows within the franchise.
