- 1 ? In The Young Ones, Vyvyan, Rick, Neil and Mike are supposedly students — but what is the rather unimpressive North London college they attend?

Scumbag College

Scumbag College wasn't just a throwaway joke — the lads famously represented it on University Challenge against Footlights College, with predictably chaotic results

- 2 ? Edina Monsoon's spectacularly eccentric PA Bubble is one of Absolutely Fabulous's most memorable characters. Which actress played her?

Jane Horrocks

Jane Horrocks didn't stop at Bubble — she also played Bubble's bizarre lookalike sister Katy Grin, proving apparently one eccentric PA wasn't quite enough

- 3 ? Rowan Atkinson and Ben Elton helped make Blackadder a British comedy classic, but which writer and director co-created the series and co-wrote its first series with Atkinson?

Richard Curtis

Richard Curtis went on to become one of Britain's biggest comedy writers, creating The Vicar of Dibley and writing films including Four Weddings and a Funeral and Love Actually

- 4 ? After ten seasons, 236 episodes and countless cups of coffee, Friends finally came to an end in 2004. Which character delivers the very last line of the series?

Chandler Bing (Matthew Perry)

Chandler's final words are simply "Where?" after Rachel suggests they all go for coffee — a perfectly understated ending considering Central Perk had been their second home for ten years

- 5 ? Peter Capaldi turned creative swearing into something approaching an art form in The Thick of It. What was the name of his terrifying spin doctor?

Malcolm Tucker

Malcolm Tucker became legendary for insults so elaborate that some of them sound less like swearing and more like particularly aggressive poetry

- 6 ? Dawn French donned the dog collar to play the wonderfully unconventional Geraldine Granger. Which much-loved BBC sitcom was she the star of?

The Vicar of Dibley

The fictional Oxfordshire village became so closely associated with the programme that Turville, where much of it was filmed, remains a popular destination for fans

- 7 ? Victor Meldrew's retirement doesn't exactly get off to a cheerful start in One Foot in the Grave. What job is he made redundant from in the very first episode?

Security Guard

Victor had worked as a security guard for 26 years before being replaced by an automated box — setting the tone perfectly for decades of "I don't believe it!"

- 8 ? Whether they're discussing tattoos, village life or the contents of Kerry's freezer, cousins Kerry and Kurtan are at the heart of which mockumentary sitcom?

This Country

Creators and stars Daisy May Cooper and Charlie Cooper are real-life siblings, and drew heavily on their experiences growing up in rural Gloucestershire

- 9 ? If Peter Griffin and his mates fancy a pint, chances are they'll be propping up the bar at The Drunken Clam. Which animated comedy series are we in?

Family Guy

The Drunken Clam is Quahog's regular watering hole for Peter, Quagmire, Cleveland and Joe — although their drinking sessions rarely result in sensible decisions

- 10 ? It sounds like the world's strangest house-share: a vampire, a werewolf and a ghost all living under one roof. Which cult BBC comedy-drama gave us this supernatural setup?

Being Human

The original pilot actually featured a different Mitchell and Annie, with Aidan Turner and Lenora Crichlow joining when the programme became a full series

- 11 ? Gordon Kaye played café owner René Artois, forever juggling the Resistance, the Germans and his various affairs. Which wartime sitcom was it?

'Allo 'Allo!

Despite being set in occupied France, much of the comedy famously relied on characters speaking English in wildly exaggerated accents to represent different languages

- 12 ? "I'll get you, Butler!" Reg Varney starred as put-upon bus driver Stan Butler in which classic British sitcom of the late 1960s and early 1970s?

On the Buses

The sitcom became such a hit that it spawned three feature films — and Reg Varney is also often credited as the first person in Britain to use a cash machine, at Barclays in Enfield in 1967
