

A romantic rendezvous turns into a double date with death! In the film's opening scenes, two young camp counsellors sneak away for some privacy, only to be brutally murdered. In which year does this deadly opening take place?

Some places have a reputation, and this one certainly isn't winning any holiday awards! What sinister nickname have the locals given Camp Crystal Lake following its troubled history?

Poor Annie's first day at work becomes her last! After accepting a lift from a mysterious driver, what alarming action convinces her that she's in serious danger?

There's always one joker in the group, even when everyone else is trying to work! Which counsellor pretends to be drowning in the lake, sending his unsuspecting colleagues rushing to the rescue?

Jack and Marcie are enjoying a little private time in their cabin, completely unaware that they've got some rather unpleasant company. Where is the body of their murdered colleague Ned hidden?

Forget collecting £200 for passing Go – this version of Monopoly comes with a rather cheekier penalty! What unusual variation of the classic board game do Alice, Bill and Brenda play during the storm?

Brenda hears what sounds like a frightened child desperately calling for help in the darkness. Which area of the camp does she investigate before meeting her grisly fate?

With their friends missing and the situation becoming increasingly terrifying, Alice and Bill search Brenda's cabin. What bloodstained weapon do they discover lying on her bed?

When Bill disappears while investigating the camp's electrical problems, Alice makes a horrifying discovery. How has his murdered body been secured to the generator-room door?

The seemingly helpful Mrs Voorhees has a terrifying secret, and her murderous rampage is driven by an old tragedy. What were the camp counsellors doing instead of supervising her son when he drowned?

After a desperate struggle beside Crystal Lake, Alice finally turns the tables on her murderous attacker. What weapon does she use to deliver the fatal blow to Mrs Voorhees?

Surviving a night of murder should surely earn Alice a peaceful hospital stay! However, when she asks the police about the boy who dragged her underwater, what disturbing information do they reveal?

1 A romantic rendezvous turns into a double date with death! In the film's opening scenes, two young camp counsellors sneak away for some privacy, only to be brutally murdered. In which year does this deadly opening take place?

Answer: 1958

One For The Bar!
The film was shot in 1979, but the opening scenes are set in 1958, a full 21 years before the main story.

2 Some places have a reputation, and this one certainly isn't winning any holiday awards! What sinister nickname have the locals given Camp Crystal Lake following its troubled history?

Answer: Camp Blood

One For The Bar!
The name "Camp Blood" appears on a sign in the film and is the local nickname for the camp.

3 Poor Annie's first day at work becomes her last! After accepting a lift from a mysterious driver, what alarming action convinces her that she's in serious danger?

Answer: The driver passes the turning for Camp Crystal Lake and refuses to stop

One For The Bar!
Annie realises something is wrong when the driver ignores her destination, accelerates and refuses to stop.

4 There's always one joker in the group, even when everyone else is trying to work! Which counsellor pretends to be drowning in the lake, sending his unsuspecting colleagues rushing to the rescue?

Answer: Ned Rubenstein

One For The Bar!
Ned's only real aim was to get a reaction from the others – he wasn't actually in danger at all.

5 Jack and Marcie are enjoying a little private time in their cabin, completely unaware that they've got some rather unpleasant company. Where is the body of their murdered colleague Ned hidden?

Answer: In the upper bunk of the bed, directly above them

One For The Bar!
Ned's body is hidden in the top bunk, while Jack and Marcie are on the lower bunk.

6 Forget collecting £200 for passing Go – this version of Monopoly comes with a rather cheekier penalty! What unusual variation of the classic board game do Alice, Bill and Brenda play during the storm?

Answer: Strip Monopoly

One For The Bar!
The game is a homemade version of Monopoly with strips instead of money as the penalty!

7 Brenda hears what sounds like a frightened child desperately calling for help in the darkness. Which area of the camp does she investigate before meeting her grisly fate?

Answer: The archery range

One For The Bar!
Brenda follows the sound to the archery range, where she's attacked and killed.

8 With their friends missing and the situation becoming increasingly terrifying, Alice and Bill search Brenda's cabin. What bloodstained weapon do they discover lying on her bed?

Answer: A bloodstained axe (hatchet)

One For The Bar!
The weapon is a small axe, covered in blood, lying on Brenda's bed.

9 When Bill disappears while investigating the camp's electrical problems, Alice makes a horrifying discovery. How has his murdered body been secured to the generator-room door?

Answer: He is pinned to the door with arrows

One For The Bar!
Bill's body is found with arrows shot through his chest, pinned to the door.

10 The seemingly helpful Mrs Voorhees has a terrifying secret, and her murderous rampage is driven by an old tragedy. What were the camp counsellors doing instead of supervising her son when he drowned?

Answer: They were making love (having sex)

One For The Bar!
The counsellors were distracted and in a cabin, having sex, instead of watching her son.

11 After a desperate struggle beside Crystal Lake, Alice finally turns the tables on her murderous attacker. What weapon does she use to deliver the fatal blow to Mrs Voorhees?

Answer: A machete

One For The Bar!
Alice uses a machete, which she finds nearby, to kill Mrs Voorhees.

12 Surviving a night of murder should surely earn Alice a peaceful hospital stay! However, when she asks the police about the boy who dragged her underwater, what disturbing information do they reveal?

Answer: The police found no sign of any boy in the lake

One For The Bar!
The police tell Alice there was no evidence of any boy in the lake, only her and the bodies.